18	Objective of the Course:	This course provides an introduction to anthropological perspectives on art defined as a social process and explains influences of culture and civilization on Art. Students will study not only the artefacts themselves and the values attributed to them, but also the process of production and its wider context. Providing a critical overview of various anthropological theories of art, the course offers a new perspective which centres on the analysis of commoditisation, aestheticisation and object agency. Also explores the process of collecting and exhibiting art works and how this relates to art's production, distribution and consumption in an increasingly global market. Finally, this course gives a detailed overview of themes that are central to the fields of art history, art sociology and cultural studies.
19	Contribution of the Course to Professional Development:	Comprehend the interaction between art, culture and other social arguments in the historical process and relate these own production to the current social and cultural structure.
20	Learning Outcomes:
	1	Discuss cultural change in art.
	2	Knows the effects of cultural developments on art styles.
	3	Understand the relationship between cultural life and art.
	4	Explain the cultural styles of art styles.
