18	Objective of the Course:	In this course, it is aimed that the student will gain knowledge about the ideological and philosophical assumptions behind the critical social psychology. It is also aimed that the student will be aware of the theoretical/methodological diversity within the critical approaches.
19	Contribution of the Course to Professional Development:	This course gives the student the ability to approach the field of social psychology with a critical perspective. It also helps him/her realize what kinds of assumptions his/her social psychological knowledge is based on. Finally, the student develops the ability to diagnose problems in social psychological practice with the help of the critical approach.
20	Learning Outcomes:
		1	To be able to describe the ideological and philosophical foundations of the critics directed at the mainstream social psychology
		2	To be able to differentiate the basic assumptions behind the methodology of the critical social psychology from the methodology of the mainstream social psychology
		3	To be able to develop a critical approach to the basic research areas of the mainstream social psychology
		4	To be able to discern the problems in the activities of the applied social psychology
